Mafia XXX is a clone of the popular PPSSPP. Nanda Joke Ramen [ZIP][V0.2][MD5]:. game.zip MCFCE 2.7 bersalin [!][MULTI] The Clown [iGame2] [Lossy][MINC]:. Q: show/hide view dynamically I've looked at some of the questions with similar topics as mine, but I can't find a solution. My app has 2 different view controllers. When I press a button, the current view controller is replaced with the other view controller. Currently, I'm using the following code to hide the original view controller:
-(IBAction)myButtonPressed:(id)sender{ HomeViewController *homeViewController = (HomeViewController*)self.parentViewController; [self.parentViewController setViewControllers:[NSArray arrayWithObjects:nil] animated:NO]; homeViewController.view.frame = CGRectMake(0, 0, 320, 480); [self.parentViewController showDetailViewController:nil]; } However, when I change the parentViewController to point to the other view, the following method is called, which makes everything on the screen disappear. -(void)hideApp:(id)sender{ UIViewController *vc = self.view.window.rootViewController; [self.view.window.rootViewController dismissModalViewControllerAnimated:NO]; [self.view.window makeKeyAndVisible]; [vc setViewControllers:[NSArray arrayWithObjects:nil] animated:NO]; [self.view.window insertSubview:vc.view atIndex:0]; CGRect frame = vc.view.frame; frame.origin.y += 20; vc.view.frame = frame; [vc.view setAlpha:0]; } It seems like it is the same code that makes the app disappear. I'm using storyboard to display and dismiss view controllers. Any ideas on how to solve this? A: Use parentViewController instead of self.parentViewController -(void)hideApp:(id)
